VOL. 18 NO. 47

Mokena, Will County, Illinois, Friday, July 17, 1936

$1.50 Per Year In Advance

RACE ENDS THIS SAT. AFTERNOON

SECRET BALLOT ALL THIS WEEK;
LAST EIGHT HOURS WILL DECIDE;
BALLOT BOX IN MOKENA BANK

The climax Saturday afternoon at four o'clock!

Seven weeks of hard work and anxiety on the part of several untiring, unrelenting and never-quitting candidates will close the big Weekly Payroll subscription drive conducted by the Semmler Publications and the results will remain for the judges to announce. They will have done their work as well and as completely as possible, and will, a short time thereafter, know the results of the most successful and interesting campaign ever waged in this section of the state.

The ballot box, locked and sealed, was placed in the vaults of the Mokena State Bank the first of the week, and workers must place their subscriptions and cash to cover them in the box, which will remain in the bank until the closing hour—

How to Get Almost A Million Votes

A five-year subscription to one of the Semmler Newspapers (new or renewal) represents 15,000 votes.

Forty such subscriptions means 600,000 REGULAR VOTES. Then in addition to the regular votes on each subscription, 20,000 CLUB VOTES are given on each $20 turned in. Forty subscriptions of this kind means 15 times 20,000 or a total of 300,000 CLUB VOTES.

Therefore, forty five-year subscriptions, or an equivalent in shorter term orders, means 600,000 REGULAR VOTES plus 300,000 CLUB VOTES OR A GRAND TOTAL OF 900,000 VOTES. ENOUGH TO MAKE ANY PAY-ROLLER WINNER OF FIRST PLACE.

Haven't you 40 friends who would help you to the extent of a five-year subscription to the "hometown paper" (only $7.50) toward making you winner of first place in this race. They get full value in the home newspaper for their money, so it costs them nothing to help a friend win first prize.

TRY IT AND SEE!

4 o'clock this coming Saturday afternoon.

A word of final admonition to the Payroll workers:

Are you going to be one to finish triumphantly with an overwhelming number of votes, or are you going to be content with what you have and see the efforts of these weary weeks go to waste and the awards wrested from your grasp by a more aggressive opponent? IT IS UP TO YOU NOW—or let your opponent beat you.

Success in an affair of this kind depends upon keen judgment and immediate action. Throughout history people possessing the faculty of knowing a good thing when they see it, have won (frequently on the last turn of the cards) the good things of this life, while those undecided and afraid stand back and talk about what they might have done.

The end is but a few hours away, yet, if you can trust your own judgment as to your competitors strength based on facts and observation, and lay your plans accordingly, there is yet time to stem the tide of defeat and turn your past few week's work into an earning of more than $600.

Better Be Safe Than Sorry

The Semmler Publications have urged Payroll workers to do their best right along, but now we wish to lay particular stress on the final necessity of looking the situation squarely in the face and seeing where it will be necessary to put forth their supreme efforts between now and the finish if they would be returned winner of that fine 1936 automobile.

Count On Facts Only

Payroll workers, don't flatter yourself

Who Will Win Prize Automobile?

Who will the winner be? That is the question now!

It will be answered at four (4) o'clock next Saturday afternoon, July 18, when the judges count the results in the sealed ballot box. All votes earned by Payroll workers during the first and

MRS. ANTON BENSON, Mokena
MRS. ALMA BROWN, Mokena
FLOYD COOPER, Orland Park
MRS. EMIL KAMPE, Frankfort
GEORGE PRICE, Tinley Park
ISABELLE WALDVOGLE, Frankfort
DOLORES WALSH, New Lenox.

(These names are listed alphabetically.) Read details of final count elsewhere.

An Open Letter To Payroll Workers

It has been a real pleasure to work with the energetic and ambitious "payrollers" in the Wm. Semmler Newspapers Payroll Subscription Drive, now in its final stages and which comes to a close next Saturday at four o'clock in the afternoon.

All have shown a commendable spirit of good sportsmanship and fair play; all entered the race smiling and have carried their smiles right through to the finish. Their work has been an accomplishment to be proud of, and we feel sure the experience gained during these few weeks will be of untold value in years to come.

We are sorry that an automobile can not be awarded to each and every one of the workers, but to do so, of course, would eliminate competition.

The race will soon be over. To the winners, congratulations. To those who go down to defeat we can truthfully say you have fought a good fight, and especially commendation is due them that were game to the end.

Sincerely yours,
COL JOHN H RYAN
Payroll Manager.

that you already have votes enough to win. Don't think for a moment that a few hundred thousand votes will be enough to win, for it won't. There is more than one worker in that class right now, and before the final scene comes into play you may expect to see those figures greatly enlarged. DON'T TAKE A CHANCE OF LOSING BECAUSE OF A FEW EXTRA SUBSCRIPTIONS. It would be better to win by a million than lose by a few hundred thousand.

Beware of Overconfidence

Overconfidence has lost many battles. Relaxation at this stage of the game is suicidal to success. Determination to win, coupled with relentless activity in vote getting will make any of the leaders a winner. To temporize now is to let some competitor sweep ahead of you and win the prize that might have been yours.

All subscriptions placed in the sealed ballot box must be accompanied by the full amount to cover and in the form of cash, post office money orders or certified checks. Personal checks up to $7.50 will be accepted, providing no two checks are signed by the same person. This ruling is made in fairness to all workers and will be strictly adhered to.

At the present time the publisher of these newspapers and the contest manager are as much in the dark as to the number of subscriptions secured and placed in the sealed ballot box as the most casual observer, which insures fairness to the minutest degree.

REMEMBER! All votes and subscriptions must be in the sealed ballot box by 4 o'clock Saturday afternoon to count in this race.

Adult Confirmation

Sunday, July 19, at 7:30 p. m., a special service will be conducted in Trinity Lutheran church at 159th & Oak Park avenue, in which the largest adult class ever to be confirmed in this church will be received into communicant membership by the rite of confirmation. Following are the names of those to be confirmed: Alex Besselko; Caroline Klein; Mrs. George Schultz; Mrs. Lester Uthe; Nicholas Van Swol. We invite you to attend this service.

Relief Proposition Voted Down In Orland Township

The eyes of the surrounding townships in Cook and Will Counties are on Orland Township now since this township flatly turned down the proposition of levying a special tax of 30 cents on each $100 assessed real estate property valuation for relief purposes as provided by a recently enacted state law which provides that such townships as turn down the 30 cents special tax, will not receive any more of the state sales tax after October 1st.

When the Orland Township Board called a special meeting at the Orland Park village hall, Tuesday afternoon to consider the question, about 25 property owners were present, Charles Doctor, former supervisor of Orland Township and Supervisor Fred E. Yunker and other town officers were present. Mr. Doctor was chosen moderator and explained the object of the meeting and when the matter was put to a vote the nay vote was unanimous, not a single aye vote being heard.

At present there are 32 families on relief in Orland Township and just how they will be taken care of is a big problem. There is some talk of bonding the town if the emergency should grow acute.

It is said that the reason why Orland voters turned down the special relief tax is that certain families are on relief that should not be. According to stories in circulation, one man owns a flat building in Chicago and yet has been receiving $30 a month relief aid. Another story has it, that certain parties who were employed by the Wabash railroad at a wage of 30 cents per hour, quit their jobs and went on WPA when the latter started offering 55c per hour for a 25 hour week.

Stories such as these, whether true or not, have turned the majority of the tax payers of Orland township against the idea of the government and state turning back the relief matters to the individual townships. The property owners feel they are taxed to the limit now without being asked to take on a new tax load. The question is also being asked what is to become of the sales tax money which will not be paid to such towns as refuse to levy the new 30c relief tax. The consumers are paying the 3c sales tax, but who is getting this money? We would like to hear more about this matter from our politicians.

Award Contract For Well Equipment for Orland

Last Wednesday the Orland Park village board awarded a contract to the American Well Works of Aurora for the installation of a deep well pumping equipment for the Orland Park pumping station for the sum of $1100. There were two other bidders beside the Aurora concern.

The new pumping outfit will be so arranged that a gas engine can be used for power whenever the motor should be out of commission. The new pump will be able to pump 240 gallons of water per minute.

Work on installing the new equipment is to be started at once.

Tries to Fry Egg On R. R. Track

We often have heard it said that pavements or sidewalks are hot enough to fry eggs on, but flagman Price at the Rock Island railroad crossing in New Lenox reports that during the blistering hot days of the past week the rails were so hot that he actually did fry an egg on one of the rails in front of the flag shanty the other day. It is estimated that the rails were heated to a temperature of over 200 degrees by the blazing sun.

Fire Wipes Out Old Landmark Of Homer Twp.

Fire, supposedly caused by a cigarette or cigar stub being thrown from a passing auto on 159th street Tuesday morning, resulted in the dry grass along the highway catching fire and fanned by a high wind swept thru the Oscar Bump farm land. An old unoccupied log building said to have been nearly 100 years old and an old landmark of Homer township, and several other buildings were destroyed. The Orland Fire Department was called and succeeded in checking the fire from spreading to adjacent farms.

Eliminating Death Trap On Lincoln

The Lincoln highway from Frankfort west and east of New Lenox has been closed as also has Wolf road south of Mokena due to the construction work now under way.

In order to eliminate the death trap between two hills at the point where Wolf road junctions with the Lincoln Highway, the hill to the east of this point is being cut down and the Lincoln Highway will be repaved at this point to make it on a level with the Wolf road intersection. Grading on the new Wolf paving job is also under way.

AGED MOKENA MAN SUCCEUMBS TO HEAT WAVE

Charles Lewis Sylvester, aged 79 years, was found dead in a chair in the Don C. Hall home in Mokena Wednesday morning July 15. Mr. Sylvester was stricken with a paralytic stroke while visiting the News-Bulletin office last fall and for a time his life was despaired of, but he finally rallied from the attack and was able to be about again.

The torrid weather was hard on him which weakened his heart, resulting in death. He apparently passed away in his sleep. As he felt it was too hot to go to bed Tuesday night, he wished to sleep sitting in his chair. About 6:30 Wednesday morning, Mrs. Don C. Hall Jr., found him dead in the chair.

Mr. Sylvester had made his home with the Hall family for many years. During the time the Hall family had a two car show train on the road, Mr. Sylvester cooked for the company. In his early days he worked as a cook on steamers. He came with the Hall family to Mokena in 1923. For a number of years he was engaged in the rug weaving business.

Mr. Sylvester has a very colorful and interesting family history. His ancestors date back to 1680 who lived in the highlands of Scotland. There is also some Dutch blood in his ancestry.

Mr. Sylvester was an ardent Democrat. He was vitally interested in the political issues of the day and used to write articles for this paper dealing with political issues. He was a genuine down easterner.

He was born August 12, 1856 at Bedford Hills, Westchester County, New York, the son of Reuben and Lucretia Sylvester. There were a number of children in his family of which the deceased was the last surviving member. He was a member of the New York State Militia and the Redmen.

In 1903 he was united in marriage with Marie Ardie Martin, who died a number of years ago. There were no children. One niece, Mrs. Lockwood of New York state is the only nearest relative.

Mr. Sylvester was in California in 1906 and was a survivor of the San Francisco earthquake which took place April 18 of that year.

Funeral services will be held Friday afternoon July 17 at two o'clock in the Mokena M. E. church with the Rev. Carleton French officiating. The body will lie in state in the church from noon on. Burial will be in the St. John cemetery south of Mokena.

Mr. Sylvester made many friends during his stay in Mokena.

He didn't want to walk all day, and he did want to see what the other papers had to say of last night's events in the Cocoanut Bar. At Fifth avenue, therefore, he turned into the public library. The reports were much alike—"Night club proprietor killed resisting arrest" and "The indictment against Jay Rogers, now held for the Kelly murder, probably will be dismissed today." Barry sat, almost alone, in the "newspaper room," turning the case over in his mind. Then he asked for old files of one of the tabloids.

He was nearly an hour finding an account of the Winslow wedding. Without any definite knowledge of the date, it was a bit like looking for the proverbial needle in a haystack. Barry's curiosity was rewarded, at last, when he stumbled upon a pictorial front page headed, "Lawyer Weds Convict's Widow." The ceremony had taken place at St. Stephen's. There were pictures of the church and of the convict—"George Selby (inset) and Love Nest Where He Took His Bride." The smudgy little "inset" might have been a portrait of Nicholas Murray Butler or Jack Dempsey, and the house might have been any house, anywhere. There was an obviously faked photograph of a holdup, and an obviously genuine one of "Mr. and Mrs. Winslow Leaving St. Stephen's." "Gosh," Barry reflected, "no wonder Mrs. Winslow had a nervous breakdown!"

The story, on the second page, was in the best tabloid tradition. "Five years ago," it began, "Peter Winslow, obscure young attorney, secured the acquittal of George Selby, charged with participating in the robbery of a candy store in the Bronx. Yesterday, Peter Winslow, rich and famous criminal lawyer, and George Selby's widow were the principal figures in what was to have been a secret ceremony at St. Stephen's."

The present Mrs. Winslow had run away with George Selby while he was a cadet in a military school. They had come to New York, rented the "love nest," and been "blissfully happy" until Selby ran out of money, and was compelled to take his wife to a boarding house. He had been arrested there, for the candy store robbery, in April, 1921. Peter Winslow had got him off, but, the following June, he was caught in another robbery in Philadelphia, and sentenced to a long term in the State Penitentiary. With two other convicts, "Lefty" Miller and "Mugs" Scanlan, he had escaped in October, 1923. Peniless, the men "staged a hold-up that same night in Fairmount Park. The victim called for help, and Selby killed him. Scanlan was shot dead by a police officer, and Selby, attempting to get away, jumped into the river, and was drowned. His body was found two weeks later, entangled in an anchor chain."

Winslow had given Mrs. Selby work in his office, and "three years after Selby's death, love culminated in the ceremony at St. Stephen's."

That explained a good deal, Barry thought, remembering the soft, round, pink little woman with worried eyes. It explained Peter's protective attitude. It might explain his quick interest in the Rogers case, in which, Barry had told Winslow, Peggy had been "putting up such a game fight to make a man of her husband."

"That sort of thing always gets me," Peter had observed. "A woman tied up to some man who's not worthy of her, and in love with him."

Peter's "Julie" had been in love with her first husband, then. And he with her, evidently, to judge by what the tabloids said of their happiness. "Must have been something good in that chap," Barry reasoned. "Probably realized what his wife was trying to do for him. We're a curious mixture."

He was still brooding over curious mixtures, and other things, when a clock struck somewhere, and reminded him that, by now, there might be a message as to young Ridder's release awaiting him at his hotel.

There wasn't. All Thursday afternoon Barry sat in his room and, at five o'clock, he called Peter's secretary. "Nothing definite yet," she informed him. "The District Attorney's making the motion all right, but it'll be tomorrow now before anything comes of it."

Against his better judgment, then, Barry phoned Harwood. "Don't worry," the city editor said. "Have you seen tonight's Globe? Whole first page one loud yell for this kid's release. They'll be so glad to get him off their hands—"

In spite of his friendliness, Barry noticed that Ernie didn't say, "Come on down; we've something else for you." Nor even, "Of course, we'll expect you to cover Rogers getting out of jail." Why should he? "The big beat" was Harwood's "beat," not Barry's, and, anyway, the old man would be at his desk the day after tomorrow. Harwood did say that, at last. "You'd better see him. I'll phone you when. Probably not before Monday. He'll be pretty busy for a day or two. Of course, you'll be around for your salary on Saturday. Might look me up then."

He was still on the pay roll, at least. That was important, what with overdrafts and hotel bills, and such things. Sober reflection, backed by experience, had persuaded Barry that he couldn't get much on his wardrobe. The studs and cuff-links were rather cheap stuff. He had sold an overcoat once—in this very town—for three dollars.

Saturday's money would just square the bank account. As for the hotel bill—"Well, I'll give them my clothes," Barry decided, "and I'll have something left in my jeans when I move out of here."

He phoned Peggy again, and then dined frugally and went back to his room. Step by step, he went over its details, seeing everything in the new light cast by the events of the past few hours. At midnight, for the fifth or sixth time, he re-read the story in the Globe. "Well, that's that," he said aloud, tossing the paper into the wastebasket and winding his silver wrist-watch. "Morano's dead, young Ridder'll be free tomorrow, old Ridder'll be home Saturday, and that's that. Wonder where I'll be a week from now."

It didn't matter much. "Nothing matters much," he told himself again, dwelling on Pat's phrase, "Not without Pat, it doesn't. She's a grand girl. Out of my class, though. A week from now, she'll be playing tennis and going over to dinner at the Ridders. Wonder if Peg'll be there. Wonder what's going to happen to those two young people?" In Friday morning's paper, under "Personal Intelligence," he found a mention of the Winslows. "Mr. and Mrs. Peter Winslow are sailing on the Aquitania next Wednesday," the item read, "for an extended tour of the Continent." That was that, too. Barry's drama was ending with all its principal characters disposed of, as well-made drama should end.

Winslow's secretary called him just before noon. "Mr. Winslow wants me to tell you that Rogers will be free in an hour or two."

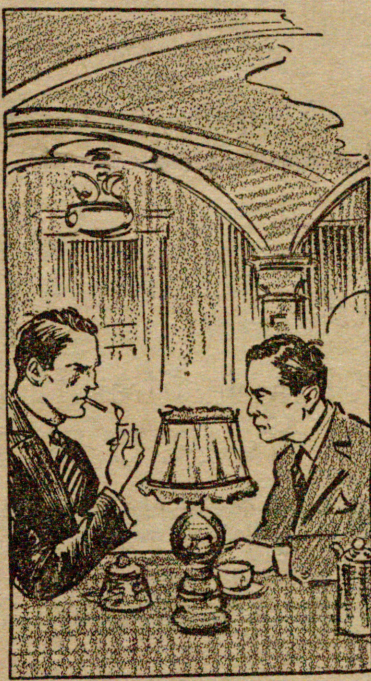

"How's Mrs. Winslow?"

"Much better. Mr. Winslow's still with her, though."

"And the Hamblings?"

"No; they went back to Southampton last night."

Once more, that was that, Barry thought, getting his hat and making tracks for the subway. He reached the Tombs well in advance of official orders for the release of "Jay Rogers."

"Maybe I Was," Ridder Admitted.

It was nearly five o'clock, indeed, when "Jay Rogers" appeared, looking very white and haggard, and the last train had left for Southampton. "You can talk to Peggy on the phone," Barry told him, "and then you'd better have dinner with me, and a good night's rest at my hotel. The Bremen gets in very early, and you'll want to be on the dock."

Jack looked at him quizzically.

"Will I?"

"Won't you?"

"I suppose so. I'd like to see my mother."

"I'd like to see her myself," Barry said. "She's been swell to you, all right."

"Yes."

At dinner, Jack declared, "I'll take that job on the paper now, if my father'll give it to me."

"Why not?"

"You started me thinking. I can see the old man's viewpoint. He's got to be decent to Peggy, though. It's both of us, or neither. . . . What's going to happen to you?"

"Search me!"

"Look here," Jack blurted. "I'm Ridder now. Who needs to know that I was ever Jay Rogers? I've been at Southampton all the time, writing letters to my mother, and everything. You've been Barry Gilbert, working on the Globe, and likely to go on working there. What's the matter with that?"

"Willets is the matter with it," Barry answered—"Willets, and Evans, and Winslow, and all the camera-clickers on the newspapers. There've been several pictures of you already. I can't understand why you weren't identified long ago."

"Maybe I was," Ridder admitted. "Your old college chums don't exactly run after you while you're in jail. They don't get to be college chums until you're in Who's Who."

"Anyway," Barry continued, "your scheme's out. I want to come clean. Don't ask me why. I was going to run away a week ago, and I couldn't make it. 'Gentlemen don't do that,' I said. I've got a new picture of myself as a gentleman."

"That's what does the trick, I guess,"

Jack speculated. "Most of us spend our lives trying to live up to the portraits of ourselves that hang over our mental mantel-pieces. Yours was of a reckless, devil-may-care young vagabond. Then you moved into a house, and company, where that picture didn't fit. You hung up a new one, and you've got to live up to that now. It was the same way with me. The picture of myself I liked was of an irresponsible, slightly dissipated young genius. The family portraits didn't appeal to me. Yours did—your new picture of yourself, I mean. I'm going to try to be like that the rest of my life."

They were lingering over cigars and coffee now.

"What is a gentleman?" Barry asked.

Jack smiled.

"The fellow who gets the right portrait."

"I suppose so," Barry said. "Family and clothes didn't make you one—not when you were getting drunk and forging checks. I wasn't one when I took another man's name, and money, and made up to a girl who thought I was somebody else. . . . Pictures over mantel-pieces. That's another word for tradition, I guess. The tradition that makes men defend women, and go down on sinking ships, and all that sort of thing. When that stops being our picture of ourselves, 'God help all of us,' I told Pat once. . . . Come on; let's go to a movie!"

CHAPTER XII

The next afternoon—around three o'clock—Harwood phoned.

"The old man wants to see you. Here at his office. I'd come quick if I were you."

So Jack had told him.

Or Evans.

"I'd be glad if you'd tell Willets, and the rest," Barry had said to the chauffeur. "It'll save me introducing the subject." It would, too. He had dreaded his first few moments with Ridder—beginning his story with a pair of cold, calm eyes boring into him. They would be cold eyes; he felt sure of that.

And they were.

"The big chief" sat at his big desk in a big, richly-furnished office with a big door and a little one. The big double door opened into the reception room. Barry entered through that, and found himself facing Ridder and the smaller single door behind him.

Ridder was reading a radiogram, and he went on reading. A tall, thin man, with New England written all over him. A youngish man for his age, which might have been fifty. He wore gold-rimmed spectacles. His long, thin, absolutely straight mouth was higher at the right end, and his right eye was longer and narrower than his left. He had a sharp chin, and a thin nose, and a broad forehead, with thin, graying, sandy hair. The kind of man who could say "Good morning" as though that ended the discussion.

"All right," Barry repeated to himself. "I'll take my medicine. It'll soon be over, anyway. He isn't going to give a damn what I did for his son. If I can say anything to make it easier for those two youngsters and Jacky—Wonder what's back of that little door."

He was still wondering when the big chief looked up.

"You're Gilbert?"

"Yes, sir."

"Alias Ridder, eh?"

"Yes, sir."

They were cold eyes. Very cold.

Mostly to end the silence, Barry said, "I suppose your son told you."

"Nobody told me. I've known all about you for two months."

"You've known—"

"I heard my wife's talk with my son the day before we sailed. Through the door to my bedroom. I heard her invite him to Southampton. Next morning, I arranged with Willets to give me a full report of his doings there."

"And—?"

Barry was thinking in monosyllables.

"And, in his first letter, he mentioned your red hair."

Barry grinned.

"He also mentioned your taking a hundred dollar bill out of an envelope addressed to Mrs. Ridder."

The grin faded.

"You haven't made a move that I haven't known about."

He waited.

"Why didn't you have me arrested?"

"Because I knew that my son was in prison, accused of this murder. I read about that less than an hour after I'd satisfied myself that you weren't my son. Jay Rogers. I'd had a man following him all about Florida. The man's report agreed perfectly with the newspaper account of Jay Rogers."

"Still—"

"What was I to do? Sell? The doctor said that was out of the question. I wired Harwood 'Rogers didn't kill Kelly. Find out who did.' Twenty-four hours later, I knew you were on the Globe, and why, and that you'd succeeded in interesting Winslow."

(TO BE CONTINUED)

Our Early Windows
Our windows originally were divided into small panes, because only small panes could be made economically. Glass was blown like toy balloons, and, naturally, only small areas could be cut from these glass globes to fit in a flat frame. When the art of glassmaking made large panes possible the tendency was to clear our windows of all cross pieces and have large unobstructed surfaces.

Source of Olive Oil

Olive oil comes, as its name implies, from the olive, the fruit of small tree which grows in southern Europe. In its unripe state, the olive is eaten between the courses of a dinner. When ripe, it yields olive oil, which has many uses—both internal and external. It is even used as a substitute for butter in some countries bordering on the Mediterranean.

Matron's Dress with Vestee

Pattern No. 1907-B

This dress designed with soft capelet sleeves and a contrasting vestee is one of those perennial styles. It is always a pleasure to show by popular request. They're so universally becoming to larger and more mature women, en, and so adaptable to conventional occasions.

The model shown is a clever street frock which takes into consideration the fitting problem encountered by many women whose tastes incline toward conservative dressmaking. The lines are studied to give slenderness without sacrificing a trim and neat appearance, exemplified in the beautifully pointed bodice, especially graceful and smart. Sheer cotton, prints and chiffons are delightful for town or country.

Barbara Bell Pattern No. 1907-B is available for sizes: 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, 46, 48 and 50. Size 36 requires 4 3/4 yards of 39 inch material. Send 15 cents in coins.

Send for the Summer Pattern Book containing 100 Barbara Bell well-planned, easy-to-make patterns. Exclusive fashions for children, young women, and matrons. Send 15 cents for your copy.

Labor and Wait

IT IS easy to make a spurt, but hard to keep pegging away. Confucius taught the Chinese this lesson by a parable: "If I am building a mountain," said he, "and stop before the last basket of earth is put on top of my work, I have failed; but if I have placed the smallest basketful on the ground, and go on, I am really building a mountain." Like the soldiers of Nehemiah at the building of the wall of Jerusalem that "held the spears from the rising of the morning till the stars appeared"; so let us labor and wait, if necessary, until the stars appear.

All Around the House

Cut out old canes in raspberry bushes when they are through bearing fruit. These canes will never bear fruit again.

When making pastry use only enough water to hold ingredients together. Mix quickly, roll and handle as little as possible if you wish pastry to be flaky.

A cup of peanut butter mixed with half a cup of mayonnaise and one finely chopped raw onion makes a good sandwich spread.

Lingerie must be tinted occasionally to preserve its dainty appearance. A faded blue garment will tint a delicate orchid with the aid of a pink dye, a pale yellow will shade into a delicate green if dipped in blue dye and a pink dye will change the yellow to a shell pink. Be sure to use small quantities of the dye for these pastel shades.

The fat side of beef should be placed nearest the flame when roasting. The melting fat will flavor and baste the meat during the cooking.

Oil or oily substances should never be used on waxed floors. They soften the wax, sink into wood and eventually darken it.

A pinch of baking soda added to the water in which a fowl is cooked will make it more tender.

Cloths saturated with polishing liquids if stored away in a closet often cause spontaneous combustion. Keep these cloths in a covered tin container.

Use the purest of cider vinegar for pickles and pickled preserves. Do not mix two different kinds of vinegar.

"I WOULDN'T RISK MY LIFE ON ANY OTHER TIRE"

Says Louis Meyer—

Only three time winner
Indianapolis Race 28 '33 '36

EQUIP YOUR CAR WITH

Firestone
GUM-DIPPED TIRES
for Greater Safety!

THERE is a reason why Louis Meyer won the 500-mile Indianapolis race this year—and why he is the only man ever to win this gruelling race three times. He always used Firestone Gum-Dipped Tires, and never experienced tire trouble of any kind.

Louis Meyer knows tire construction. He also knows that to drive for 500 consecutive miles over this hot brick track, negotiating the dangerous curves 800 times at the record-breaking average speed of 109 miles an hour, requires tires of super strength and greatest blowout protection, as a blowout on any one of the dangerous curves would likely mean instant death. By the Firestone patented Gum-Dipping process every cord in the tires on Louis Meyer's car was soaked and coated with liquid rubber, thereby preventing internal friction and heat. This is the secret of the extra strength and reserve safety built into Firestone Tires.

You of course will not drive 109 miles per hour, but at today's higher speeds you do need tires that will give you greatest blowout protection and will stop your car up to 25% quicker. Take no chances! Let your Firestone Auto Supply and Service Store or Firestone Dealer equip your car with Firestone Gum-Dipped Tires, the safest tires built. It costs so little to protect lives worth so much!

THE New Firestone STANDARD

Designed and constructed by Firestone tire engineers for long mileage and dependable service—a first quality tire built of high grade materials by skilled workmen, embodying the Firestone patented construction features of Gum-Dipping and Two Extra Layers of Gum-Dipped cords under the tread.

Its exceptional quality and service at these low prices are made possible by large volume production in the world's most efficient tire factories. Made in all sizes for passenger cars, trucks, and buses.

Beauty

In the elevator of a big store she noticed a very attractive poster advertising beauty treatment. Out of curiosity she asked the elevator attendant (a funny little Cockney) where the beauty parlor was.

He turned and gave her a good look, noticed presumably that she did not use make-up at all, and then said, "You don't want ter go there mucking your face about. Why not stay as y'are—plain but 'olesome?" —Troy Times-Record.

Truss It

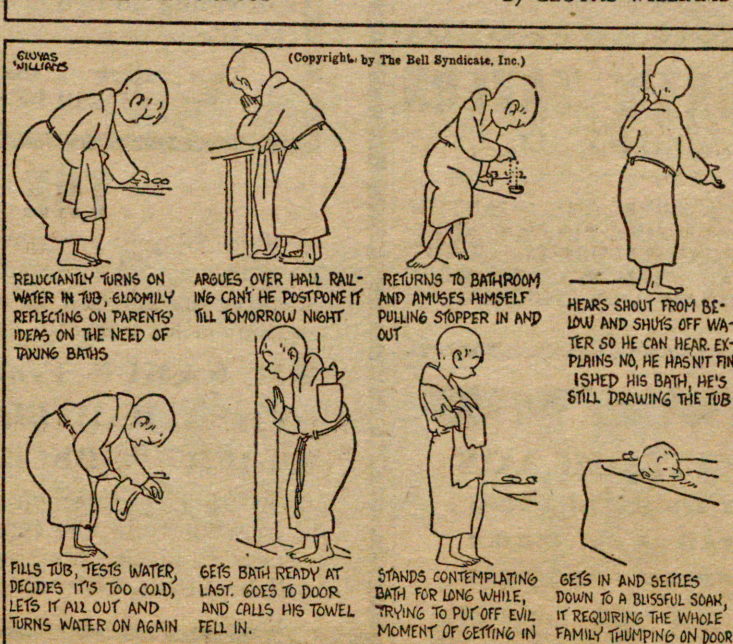

She had just begun housekeeping, with the laudable intention of paying ready money upon all occasions, and she entered a high-class poultryer's shop to purchase a chicken.

She selected one, and while she was fumbling in her handbag for a purse the shopman politely asked: "Trussed, madam?"

"Oh, dear, no," she indignantly replied. "I wish to pay for it now." —Sydney (Australia) Mail.

A Lesson in Loyalty

When a dog experiences that transition we know by the stark name of death it affects us the more poignantly because he goes over the horizon with such magnificent valor.

I have had my heart wrenched many times by a close-up of this extraordinary courage. Invariably dogs meet what mankind regards as the terror of terrors with a beautiful complacency, an instinct, if you will, that should hearten us all for a journey that is inevitable.

Dogs have taught those of us who love them many excellent things. Foremost, perhaps, is the divine quality, loyalty. They have also taught the art of forgiveness and forthright honesty.

So it does not seem at all strange to me that they should help us to banish fear of the last enemy. I had a dog whose obedience to my command sent him to death under a careening joy-rider's wheels. He crawled back to me, licked my hand as though to say, "I don't blame you!" and stiffened in death.—O. O. McIntyre in Cosmopolitan.

DO you suffer burning, scanty or too frequent urination; backache, headache, dizziness, loss of energy, leg pains, swellings and puffiness under the eyes? Are you tired, nervous—feel all unstrung and don't know what is wrong?

Then give some thought to your kidneys. Be sure they function properly for functional kidney disorder permits excess waste to stay in the blood, and to poison and upset the whole system.

Desert Iguana in Southwest

FRANKFORT
PASTOR HONORED

"The best laid plans of mice and men, gangt aft aglae." The truth of this homely philosophy so aptly expressed by "Bobbie" Burns was again clearly demonstrated at Geuthers woods, one mile north of Frankfort, where the members and friends of St. Peter Evangelical church of Frankfort gathered for their annual outing last Sunday.

In spite of the intense heat, the first part of the program was carried out as planned. And what surprised the pastor, the Rev. Mr. Gerhold, was that so many were present on such a hot day. There also seemed to be an unusual air of expectancy present which he could not possibly account for, since he had made no announcement of a special service after the session of the Bible School.

And when, as he was ready to begin the simple service which had been planned, Mr. A. H. Krusemark arose and smilingly and yet firmly announced that there are times when even a preacher cannot have his way, and proceeded to ascend the platform with instructions that the preacher was to take his place with the audience, the whole matter was to the pastor, bewildering indeed.

Mr. Krusemark however, proceeded to carry out his own or rather the plans of the officers of the different societies of the church, mentioning the fact that it was just ten years since the Rev. Mr. Gerhold had taken over the Frankfort pastorate and 35 years since he was ordained into the ministry, and the congregation felt this double anniversary should not be passed by unnoticed by St. Peter's.

Mr. Krusemark spoke briefly of the work done during the past years voicing the appreciation of the congregation of the efforts put forth by the pastor and his family.

After presenting to the pastor a substantial purse to which the different organizations of the church had liberally contributed, he beckoned to the Rev. Mr. E. H. Plassman hiding behind a nearby tree, to come and complete the plans which were not "to gang aft aglae."

As a district officer, a neighbor and a friend, Rev. Plassman expressed his appreciation of the work done by the pastor and his family and then proceeded to deliver a masterful and appropriate sermon on the goodness of God as expressed in his works as well as in his acts.

Rev. Plassman was followed by Mr. Clyde Stauffenberg of Manhattan who spoke briefly but eloquently on behalf of the young people of this vicinity, expressing the hope that he too might dedicate his life to the service of his fellowmen.

After the pastor expressed his sincere appreciation of this surprise and closed the service, all enjoyed the picnic dinners which had been prepared and then spent the afternoon and evening socially.

German Day
Sunday Will Attract Thousands

Sunday July 19th will be a real red letter day for the German residents of Joliet and Will County when they will hold their first "German Day" picnic in the Frankfort Grove. It is being planned to make this an annual affair.

The program for Sunday provides high class entertainment, music by the Frankfort Band and a German concert band, sports, games, etc. A ball game between the Frankfort Township team and the Gerlach-Barklow team of Joliet will be one of the events.

American Legion members and German war veterans will march in the grove. Dr. Jaeger German Consul at Chicago will give an address. There will be something of interest on the program for everyone.

Plenty of eats and refreshments. Everyone is invited to attend and enjoy the famed German "Gemeinschaftlichkeit".

The festivities are scheduled to begin at two o'clock at the grove. In the evening, there will be a dance.

From present indications it is anticipated that a crowd of many thousands of people will attend the affair. Quite a number of German societies in Chicago have been contacted and are expected to send good sized delegations.

This is the first time that the people of German descent in Will county have banded together in a festivity of this nature.

DETAILS OF THE FINAL COUNT

In order to maintain the strictest secrecy as to the number of subscriptions turned in by the Payroll workers during the last period of the Wm. Semmler Newspapers Weekly Pay Creek Subscription campaign, the race will be brought to a close under a sealed ballot box.

The box, locked and sealed, is now in the vaults of the Mokena State Bank, where it will remain until the closing hour, four (4) o'clock Saturday afternoon July 18.

At that hour the race will be declared closed officially, and immediately thereafter, or as soon as the judges can canvass the findings in the box, the winners will be determined and the prizes awarded.

There will be no waiting, no complicated count, but a simple matter of adding the amounts found in the box. Not more than an hour should be consumed in this work.

IMPORTANT NOTICE

All subscriptions deposited in the sealed box must be accompanied by the full amount to cover and in the form of cash, certified checks or postoffice money order.

Personal checks up to $7.50 will be accepted, providing no two checks are signed by the same party.

This ruling is made in fairness to all the workers and will be strictly enforced.

THE JUDGES

The following prominent citizens in the territory covered by the Semmler newspapers have been selected as judges, to canvass the findings in the sealed ballot box and to award the prizes:

WM. KAMPE, Frankfort Supervisor
OTTO A. BARTELS, Cashier Mokena Bank
ROBERT A. BECKSTEIN, Mokena

All these gentlemen are well and favorably known to everybody in the territory covered by these newspapers, and the final results, as given out by them, will be beyond dispute.

Parents: Here is your opportunity to come to church with your children, rather than have them come with you. Our entire church and church school service next Sunday will last only one hour and twenty minutes. We hope YOU will see fit to spend that period with us.

At 10:30 o'clock we shall have a Children's service of Worship, which will be similar to our regular eleven o'clock service, with certain exceptions. The entire worship service will be planned for children. The sermon will deal with their lives. Several members of our church school group will assist the minister in conducting the service. This period will close promptly at 11:15, at which time the children will be dismissed.

The adults will then be invited to remain for another half hour, during which time the minister will lead a sermon-discussion on the theme: Jesus and Prayer. A part of this time will be given a discussion from the floor.

We are very anxious that our boys and girls may have their parents share with them in their service of worship. We urge you to attend. Those usually attending our eleven o'clock service will not find it burdensome to come at 10:30, we are sure.

Remember our quarterly conference on Saturday evening, July 25. Complete announcement will be made Sunday morning.

During the summer months the minister will usually be available in the community after two o'clock Saturday afternoon. You are invited to make full use of his time.

"Sacrament" was the subject of the Lesson-Sermon in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, on Sunday, July 12.

The Golden Text was, "To do good and to communicate forget not: for with such sacrifices God is well pleased" (Heb. 13:16).

Among the citations which comprised the Lesson-Sermon was the following from the Bible: "Watch ye therefore: for ye know not when the master of the house cometh, at even, or at midnight, or at the cock-crowing, or in the morning: Least coming suddenly he find you sleeping. And what I say unto you I say unto all, Watch" (Mark 13:35-37).

The Lesson-Sermon also included the following passages from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy: "It is the living Christ, the practical Truth, which makes Jesus 'the resurrection and the life' to all who follow him in deed. Obeying his precious precepts,—following his demonstration so far as we apprehend it,—we drink of his cup, partake of his bread, are baptized with his purity" (p. 81).

WORLD'S MIGHTI- EST CIRCUS COMING SOON

Great Ringling Bros. and Barnum and Bailey Combined, with Pigmy

Elephants and Pongurs from Africa,
Col. Tim McCoy and Hundreds of New Foreign Features, Offers Epoch-al Program

With the most impressive and brilliant seven-ring-and-stage program in its history, the Ringling Bros. and Barnum & Bailey Combined
Circus, which will exhibit in Chicago, under canvas in Soldier Field, for nine days beginning Saturday afternoon July 25th., offers this season, as a sensational super-feature, a herd of African pigmy elephants

the first ever to set foot on this continent. These tiny tuskies are not babies, but full-grown, middle-aged nidget elephants, the rarest animals on the face of the earth. Accompanying them is a herd of miniature African pongurs, the world's smallest beasts of burden. The pigmy elephants have proven the greatest attraction the Big Show has ever placed before the public, not even excepting its presentations in the past of the disc-lipped Ubangis, the giraffe-necked women from Burma,
the sacred white elephant of Siam, Jumbo, Tom Thumb and Goliath, the sea elephant.

Among the scores of new features, to say nothing of the new importations from Europe and Asia, including the incredible Naitto troupe, the Royal Bokara troupe, the Imperial Viennese equestrian troupe, the great Frederico and a free running horse, pony and elephant liberty act of sixty members, is Col. Tim Mc-Coy, the screen's most outstanding western star, at the head of his congress of rough riders of the world—
Cossacks, cowboys, cowgirls, vaqueros, Sioux and Blackfeet warriors and Australian bushrangers. Col. Mc-Coy, plainsman, cavalry officer in the U. S. Army Reserve and friend of the Indian, is the idol of American boys and girls, and he will be seen in both the main performances and the wild west.

The Greatest Show on Earth heads into this territory on four long railroad trains of 100 cars, with 1600 people, 7 herds of full-sized elephant actors, 1009 menagerie animals and 700 horses. Its tented city covers 14 acres of ground. There are 31 large tents, including the world's largest big top, seating 16, 000 persons.

This is the peak season for youth and beauty among the 800 world famous arenic artists with the show.
In the air, in the three rings, on the four stages and in the quarter-mile hippodrome track will be seen hundreds of pretty girls. In the 60-girl aerial ballet, the most beautiful mid-air display ever produced, there are beauties that evoke columns of newspaper comment wherever the Ringling Bros. and Barnum & Bailey
Combined Circus exhibits.

Class 1 Payment Rates Announced

Cook County average rates of class 1, or soil-conserving payments, is $13.10 an acre, according to an announcement received by O. G. Barrett, Cook Co., Farm Adviser, thru the extension service of the College of Agriculture, University of Illinois.

"This average county rate is not necessarily the rate which each individual farmer will receive for diverting soil-depleting acreage to soil conserving acreage under the new farm program," Barrett said. "Individual rates will be higher or lower than the county average depending upon the productivity of the individual farm, just as the county rates are higher than the national average of $10 an acre, depending upon the productivity of the land in the county."

Individual rates for farms in this county will be established by the agricultural conservation committee, and each farmer who filled out a work sheet will be notified of the class 1 payment for his farm.

It is entirely reasonable that the soil conserving payment on these highly developed truck farms will be much in excess of the average of the county of $13.10. In fact, it is rather fair to presume that it will go, in some cases, to quite twice the average of the county or nearly so. Our Cook County truck gardeners which is common only to Cook County.

Rates for Cook and other counties were based upon productivity of all farms in each county, taking into consideration average acreages and yields of principal soil-depleting crops over a period of years. The figures were compiled by the Agricultural Adjustment Administration from reports furnished by the State statistician, the state extension service of the agricultural college, the Bureau of Agricultural Economics and the agricultural census.

Mr. Barrett pointed out that the class 1 payments are different from class 2 payments which are made for following approved soil-building practices and are limited to one dollar for each acre of soil-conserving crops on the farm. Farmers may qualify for either or both types of payments.

ORLAND PARK

Edward Wagner, Jr., aged 26 years, son of Edward Wagner of Palos Park, died last Friday in a sanitarium after an illness extending over several months. He is survived by his parents, his widow and one daughter, one brother and three sisters. Funeral services were held Monday at the Palos Park Community church.

Last Thursday the Orland Park Volunteer Fire Department was called out to fight a fire in a hay field at 131st street and Harlem.

Twenty acres of hay land was burned over and a large stack of hay also fell prey to the flames.

Word comes from the John G. Loebe family that they have been enjoying the wonders of the Grand Canyon in Arizona on their western trip. They will visit California next and will continue their trip up the Pacific coast to Portland, Seattle, and other points.

Elden Nicolai has entered the employ of the Three C's trucking service in Chicago.

The quarantine on the M. E. parsonage has been raised and Mrs. John Mullen who was ill with diphtheria has fully recovered.

Francis Glahn, Sr., and Dr. W. R.

Schussler have returned from a fishing trip to Wisconsin. They had good luck and caught a good string of fish.

Farmers in this section report that the torrid weather has killed off sweet and pop corn. The stalks tasseled out quickly and the tassels have been burned by the terrific heat so this corn crop is dead. Regular field corn is showing a good stand despite the heat and farmers have hopes that the corn crop may yet be saved if the much-needed rain comes soon.

TINLEY PARK

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Funk, Miss Alma Funk and Wilbert Funk left by auto Monday morning for a trip to Rochester, Minn.

Charles Nieman and family and Mrs. Henry Nieman left Monday morning on an auto trip to Overton, Nebraska to visit with relatives for a few weeks.

The Tinley Park Volunteer Fire Department held their monthly meeting Tuesday night. The reports on the proceeds realized from the operation of the Firemen's booth at the recent Tinley Park carnival showed that the fire laddies had cleared about $175.

Friday marks the last day of school for the Zion Lutheran church school. The school has been held every morning during the hot weather with an attendance of 32 pupils. There was no school in the afternoon. Rev. Albert Buddenhagen has been the instructor.

Mrs. Fred Henke, widow of the late Fred Henke former president of the Bremen State Bank, is quite ill.

Rev. Ernest Barkow of Swanville, Minnesota is expected to arrive here Monday to spend a two week's vacation with his sister, Mrs. Albert Buddenhagen.

Miss Patricia Bagby returned Wednesday from Florida where she has been visiting for the past five weeks. She reports Florida was cooler than here.

Mr. and Mrs. Emil Bettenhausen have returned from a wedding trip. They were united in marriage at Groton, South Dakota on June 29th. The bride was formerly Miss Elvira Hanson. Mr. Bettenhausen is connected with the Bettenhausen Hardware Store in Tinley Park. Their many friends wish them much happiness. They will make their home in Tinley Park.

The semi-annual meeting of the congregation of the Zion Lutheran church was held Wednesday night.

Edward Henke, local Deer Farm Implement dealer, has had a Deer combine machine operating in a grain field on the Weber farm this week.

The grain outlook around Tinley Park is not so bad considering the hot and dry weather. Some farmers report fair oat crops and one farmer especially was quite jubilant over the fact that his oat crop was estimated to run about 40 bushels per acre and he considered the quality of the oats better this year than last.

That the ground is very dry to a considerable depth was found out by a WPA crew working at Crestwood on a street job. A trench 44 inches deep was dug and the ground was found to be without moisture at this depth.

Jack Swisher and Mrs. Carl Funk travelled to Baron Lake Tuesday to spend the day with Marion Funk who is vacationing there.

TINLEY PARK SLUGS
OAK LAWN — 13 TO 9

Last Sunday Tinley Park took Oaklawn into camp by a score of 13 to 9. The winning pitcher was Kramer and the losing pitcher was Stevens. Paced by Eddie Ryan with three hits, one a home run, Tinley scored two in the 1st inning, six in the 4th, one in the 6th and four in the 8th for a total of thirteen runs.

This year as in the past five years Manager Frank Baldwin through a great deal of hard work and self-sacrificing has assembled one of the best teams in the league and certainly deserves the appreciation and thanks of the whole community for his unstinted efforts in keeping the youngsters occupied and furnishing Tinley Park with a fine entertainment on Sunday afternoons. It takes money to run a ball club of this calibre and everyone in this district is invited to come out to the ball park and demonstrate your enthusiasm by being with and rooting for your team every Sunday afternoon.

Being short of space this week, the box score will be omitted. The score by innings:
Tinley Pk. 2 0 0 6 0 1 0 4 x—13
Oak Lawn 0 1 0 3 3 0 0 2—9
Errors—Tinley, 2; Oak Lawn, 4.
3-base Hits—Stevens, Woodruff.
Home Runs—Ryan.

BEDTIME STORY FOR CHILDREN

By THORNTON W. BURGESS

BILLY MINK AND BOBBY COON
WARN THEIR FRIENDS

BOBBY COON had been so frightened when he had sprung that trap there by the Laughing Brook that probably he would have run clear back to his home in the Green Forest had he not found Billy Mink waiting for him at the old log where they had met earlier in the evening. Billy was grinning.

"What are you running for?" he demanded. "I thought you were not afraid."

Bobby Coon stopped. "It—tried to catch me!" he panted. "It—jumped right at me!"

Billy Mink chuckled. "But I see it didn't catch you," said he. "Didn't I tell you it wouldn't hurt you if you put your paw under it? That kind of a trap is perfectly harmless as long as you do not step in it. I'm glad you sprung it. I sprung the one on the other side of the Laughing Brook the same way. Now, both of those traps are perfectly harmless. They will be until the trapper sets them again.

"Hi, You fellows!" Called Billy Mink. "Come Over Here!"

"We can go up and down the Laughing Brook through the openings in those little fences with nothing to fear as long as those traps are in plain sight. That trapper will probably come around tomorrow, but for the remainder of tonight there is nothing for us to worry about. Let's go down the Laughing Brook to the Smiling Pool."

The idea of going down to the Smiling Pool was too much for Bobby Coon to resist. So he followed Billy Mink down the bank of the Laughing Brook. When they reached the trap which Bobby had sprung, Billy Mink kicked it aside as he passed. It was plain to see that Billy Mink had known what he was talking about when he said that now that trap was perfectly harmless. Then, without hesitating, Billy slipped through the little opening in that fence the trapper had built. That proved there was nothing to fear there now, so Bobby followed. He had to make the opening big enough to get through, but he did this by pulling up a couple of the sticks.

When they reached the Smiling Pool they saw Little Joe Otter sitting on the Big Rock. Jerry Muskrat was swimming over toward his house.

"Hi, you fellows!" cried Billy Mink. "Come over here. We've something to tell you."

Little Joe Otter dived into the Smiling Pool and he and Jerry Muskrat had a race over to the place where Billy Mink and Bobby Coon were waiting. "What is it you have to tell us?" demanded Little Joe. "I don't believe it's anything important."

"That depends on how you look at it," retorted Billy Mink. "Somebody has been setting traps along the Laughing Brook. I've found three of them, Bobby Coon and I have sprung two of them. We thought we'd just come down here and give you fellows warning." Then Bobby and Billy told Little Joe and Jerry all about those traps.

DOING NOW

By DOUGLAS MALLOCH

DIVIDE the week in seven equal parts. Divide the seven into twenty-four. And then by sixty, ere the morning starts,

The sixty then by even sixty more— And yet we think in years, yea, even lives, When each second all life re-arrives.

We think in years, who ought to think in these, Of months to come, of weeks to yet appear,

Delay in days, waste hours, the minute flees, While ev'ry second life again is here.

We dream tomorrow, plan this afternoon; It is too late, and now is not too soon.

Live now, do now!—for now is all you own— Whatever you endeavor, now begin!

Who thinks tomorrow finds tomorrow flown, The season gone before the seed is in.

For all men do, whatever fields they plow, They do by doing, and by doing now!

SQUEEZE THE PENCIL

Squeezing water from a pencil is a feat that proves humorous as well as mystifying.

You ask a friend for a pencil. Receiving it, you clutch it in your right hand and deliver a squeeze. Water promptly pours from the pencil.

You need a small, dampened sponge, which you carry partly wrapped in a handkerchief. Reaching in your own pocket for a pencil, you find none; as you ask a friend for one you obtain the sponge.

Squeeze the pencil and the sponge together. Before returning the pencil bring out your handkerchief to rub the pencil dry. Put the sponge away with the handkerchief.

Washington Digest

National Topics Interpreted
by William Bruckart
National Press Building Washington, D. C.

Washington.—As the full meaning of the platforms of the two major party conventions sinks in, certain very definite conclusions cannot be avoided. In each instance, the two old political organizations have moved into virgin territory, entirely new fields.

In the case of the Republicans, their Cleveland convention completely reorganized their party leadership and placed the responsibility in the hands of younger men, casting onto the ash heap along with the old guard leaders, many of the old time conservative ideas.

In the case of the Democrats, their Philadelphia convention virtually created a new party. They went further toward the radical side than they have ever gone before. In no spirit of criticism, it must be said that the Philadelphia convention really gave birth to a New Deal party, as such. The one thing they kept was the Democratic label.

The theme song of the Republican platform was molded out of the fabric that is part and parcel of the younger generation as distinguished from the attitude given birth and promoted and protected by the Penroses, the Lodges, the Smoots and others of that texture. This is to say that the Republican convention, for the first time in many years, has moved its campaign pronouncements out onto something approximating a moral plan, or at least the evidence is they have attempted to do so.

The Democrats, having had ten days between the Republican convention and their own in which to study the Republican document and improve upon it, went considerably beyond their opponents in the language they used. They have made an appeal to the voters of the nation that surely will attract many thousands of voters to the support of Mr. Roosevelt.

On the other hand, the Philadelphia convention proceeded to cast aside many traditions, many principles, which old line Democrats, who love the Jeffersonian theory, regard as their political bible, and they may antagonize that segment of the old party by so doing.

To state the proposition in another way, many observers and political analysts hold that while the Democratic platform contains fewer contradictions than does the Republican pronouncement and that, on the whole, it is a much better written platform, they have leaned so far to the radical side that they are leaving conservative Democrats and old guard Republicans only one place to go—to the Republican candidate. This develops because, in the first instance, the old guard Republicans obviously cannot embrace a Democratic platform which they regard as too liberal and they have no choice but the Republicans. The conservative Democrats will have the choice to make. They can go to the New Deal party or they can remain as old line Democrats and swallow their pride of party affiliation long enough to support the Republican, Governor Landon.

One may look back over the doings at Philadelphia and recognize that the meeting was a thoroughly controlled from Washington. That was natural because the party in power obviously has all of the important federal offices filled with its own men. The convention included among its delegates about 64 per cent of federal office holders.

That explains better than any way I know how the 104-year-old two-thirds rule was so easily abrogated. That rule has been a sore spot in conventions for years. It has many times been the direct cause of bitter convention battles and has bred scores of bitter personal animosities. It was none the less interesting, however, to see the Philadelphia delegates toss out principles of the Democratic party with such utter abandon.

I am convinced that the Democrats have not seen the end of the two-thirds rule yet. There is every indication that it will arise again when the next quadrennial meeting is held. There are plenty of Democrats who believe that the requirement of a vote of two-thirds of all delegates shall be recorded for the man selected as the party's Presidential nominee is a protective measure. But when the convention voted out the two-thirds rule, it took the Democratic party out of the hands of the South.

It seems to me that the Southerners cannot be blamed for desiring to maintain that two-thirds rule. This is their position: through all of the recent elections, the Democratic nominee has begun his campaign with the assurance that 11, 12 or 13 states in the South would give him their electoral vote. He could concentrate, therefore, on the North and the West. The old line Southerners have held that since they always supplied from 100 to 140 electoral votes upon which the Democratic nominee could build, they ought to have something to say about his nomination, about the type of man selected. The two-thirds rule gave them a veto power and they have used it many times.

Now, unless the old line Democrats again gain control of the party, the South will no longer be able to sit as the umpire in deciding the type of character of the man who will bear their party label in campaigns.

The question may arise in many minds as to how the rule came to be discarded so easily. Earlier in this report to you, I mentioned that 64 per cent of the delegates to Philadelphia were federal office holders or party leaders selected by the Roosevelt patronage dispensers. The presence of those office holders and party leaders who have been bound to the Roosevelt administration in one way or another constitutes the answer. There were enough of them in the southern delegations to constitute a balance of power on close votes in state delegation caucuses. Hence we witnessed a good many southern states voting to abrogate the two-thirds rule over protests of some of their own members.

There is another circumstance about the Philadelphia convention that I believe warrants mention. It may have gone unnoticed generally but just 160 years after Thomas Jefferson drafted the Declaration of Independence, the Philadelphia convention of the Democratic party copied from the immortal Declaration the famous phrase: "We hold these truths to be self-evident."

It was a bold move on the part of the New Dealers to lift that Jeffersonian expression and to place it among the many new theories and new ideals which they advance under the banner of what was the Jeffersonian party. Some observers point out that this action may invite comparison between the political ideals of Thomas Jefferson and Franklin D. Roosevelt because surely there is much more in the Declaration of Independence than the simple expression that certain truths are self-evident.

In these days when the world, as well as the American nation, is sorely troubled and disturbed, those Americans who are convinced that isolation may ruin our country, can find little satisfaction either in the Democratic or Republican platforms. This may not seem important until one looks back over the last two decades. Examination of what has happened in that time is sufficient to demonstrate the significance of this isolationist trend by both major political parties.

The Republican plank on foreign affairs has little to say and what it says is chiefly negative. The plank drafted by the Roosevelt administration and adopted by the Philadelphia convention is as nebulous as the milky way. Each platform talks about peace but it is decidedly doubtful that either platform has offered a genuine way to obtain or maintain peace.

It was only natural that the Republicans should restate their opposition to the League of Nations. It was likewise only natural that the Democratic plank on foreign affairs should be full of glittering generalities because it is yet to be remembered that the late Woodrow Wilson has countless followers in the New Deal party who hold the conviction that the League of Nations, with American support, would solve most world problems. It is obvious, therefore, that the Democrats could not commit the party either to League adherence or non-adherence.

Except for the party split over the old Wilsonian policies whose ideals stood as a ghost in the background in the Philadelphia convention, one might have expected more definite declarations from the Philadelphia conclave. For example, the Roosevelt administration has sponsored reciprocal trade agreements. It has broadened American foreign policy in many other ways but some leader in the group that drafted the 1936 platform was smart enough to realize that a declaration on internationalism that was too strong would have brought about a vicious outburst at Philadelphia. In consequence, almost nothing of a tangible character was forthcoming.

Therefore, in summing up, I think it must be concluded that both platforms have been drawn to appeal to Americans as isolationists. Likewise, it occurs to me that the interpretation of their promises and plans and foreign policies by the two contending candidates will be the more interesting as the campaigns proceed.

SOCIAL SERVICE IN THE EARLY CHURCH

LESSON TEXT — Acts 4:32-35; II Corinthians 8:1-9.
GOLDEN TEXT — He said: "It is more blessed to give than to receive."—Acts 20:35.

PRIMARY TOPIC—How Jesus' Friends Shared.

JUNIOR TOPIC—When Christians See Others in Need.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Christians Sharing With Others.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Christians and Social Service.

Social service in the early Church was a by-product of the gospel and not the gospel itself. Those who are saved by the gospel will show their concern for their fellows, especially those who are fellow members of the body of Christ.

I. Characteristics of the Primitive Church (Acts 4:31-35).

1. It was a praying church (v. 31). The early Christians for every want and need betook themselves to God in prayer. Their faith caused them to go to the living God, believing that their needs would be supplied.

2. The Spirit-filled church (v. 31). When they prayed, the place was shaken wherein they were gathered together and they were all filled with the Holy Spirit.

3. It was a church which had great boldness in preaching the Word of God (v. 31). The ministers of the Spirit-filled church will not offer any apology for the Bible, but will preach it.

4. It was a united church (v. 32). They were all of one heart and soul.

5. It was a generous church (v. 32). They held nothing back from those who had need. The needs were supplied from a common fund. This was not Communism any more than when the church today helps from a common fund those who have need.

6. The ministers had a powerful testimony (v. 33).

7. It was a church whose members possessed unblemished character (v. 33). Great grace was upon them all.

II. Generous Act of Barnabas (Acts 4:36, 37).

He sold a piece of land and turned over all the proceeds to be used for those in need. It is not said that Barnabas sold all the land he had. His act, therefore, cannot in any real sense be used as a precedent for a community of goods in the church.

III. Stephen the Deacon (Acts 6:1-8).

As soon as the church had relief from external troubles, difficulties arose within. Up to this time it would seem that the problems of the church were in the hands of the apostles. A congregational meeting was called, the case placed before the church, and the church instructed to select seven men of good reputation and Spirit-filled, to administer the temporalities, giving the apostles time for prayer and the ministry of God's Word. Among the seven deacons thus chosen, Stephen had first place. While engaged in his duties as a deacon, he sprang into the light as an eloquent and powerful preacher.

IV. The Good Deeds of Dorcas (Acts 9:36-43).

Dorcas was a practical Christian woman. She was full of good works and almsdeeds which she did, not what she talked of doing. Her death was a real loss. If all professing Christian women would use their needles as Dorcas did, there would be more real testimony for Christ.

V. Christian Stewardship (II Cor. 8:1-9).

1. Examples of true Christian benevolence (vv. 1-5). The liberality of these Macedonian churches exhibits practically every principle and motive entering into Christian giving.

a. The source of true giving (v. 1). It is said to be the grace of God.

b. They gave from the depths of their poverty (v. 2).

c. Their willingness surpassed their ability (v. 3).

d. They were insistent on being allowed the privilege of giving (v. 4).

e. They first gave themselves to the Lord (v. 5).

2. Emulation of Macedonian benevolence urged (vv. 6-15).

a. Not as a command (v. 8). Acceptable giving must be spontaneous.

b. As proof of the sincerity of love (v. 8). Sincere love is benevolent action toward the object loved.

c. As the completion and harmony of Christian character (v. 7).

d. The self-sacrificing example of Christ (v. 9).

e. The true principle upon which gifts are acceptable to God (vv. 10-12). The motive of the giver determines the value of the gift.

f. Every Christian should give something (vv. 13-15).

Philosophy of Bacon

"While a little philosophy leads away from religion, much philosophy leads back to it." The man who said this was not an outsider, but a philosopher of the philosophers—Francis Bacon—the one, indeed, on whose inductive philosophy all the science of our modern world is built.

Waste of Life

The true waste of life consists in the love we have not given, the service we have not rendered, the sacrifice from which we have drawn back.

Tall Tales

As Told to:

FRANK E. HAGAN and
ELMO SCOTT WATSON

ESCAPE IN SIBERIA

SIR HORACE PLUNKETT of England, or "Hod" Plunkett as the cowboys in western Nebraska and eastern Wyoming in the early days knew him, had some thrilling adventures on the American frontier, but his narrowest escape from death was in Siberia.

One day his horse went lame near a Russian village. Being in a hurry to reach St. Petersburg, he left his horse there and hired another one, hitched to a sleigh. In the midst of a dark, dismal forest, he heard a howl and saw a huge timber wolf pursuing him.

Sir Horace lashed his horse into a mad gallop, but the wolf gained on him at every jump. Just as the fierce beast sprang at him, Sir Horace dropped down into the bottom of the sleigh. The wolf shot clear over him and lighted on the horse's hindquarters.

The terrified horse kept on running even after it was half eaten up. Then Sir Horace sprang up. His whip gave the wolf a terrific cut. With a howl the beast sprang forward just as the horse died and fell out of the harness which dropped on the wolf.

Sir Horace then grabbed up the reins. By lashing at the wolf constantly with his whip he kept it going forward at a terrific pace. A few moments later it raced into a town and came to a plunging halt in front of an inn. Out dashed a group of Russians who killed the wolf and, as Sir Horace stepped out of the sleigh, pressed forward to congratulate him upon his escape.

THE HUMILIATED TEETH

IN SALT LAKE CITY, baseball bugs still refer to Joe Jenkins, their old catcher, as the man who always wore a mask, not because Joe used a mask when catching, but the contraption he wore other times was a little net slung under his chin. It acted as catcher, too—whenever Joe's lower plate of 16 shiny, false teeth, worked loose.

Without dreaming of being insulting, Joe laid the plate aside in a restaurant one night and went right on eating. It happened the teeth were on edge; they were so humiliated by his act they rolled to the floor and hid there.

Next day, filled with remorse, the teeth began to hunt Joe. It was a long search, filled with heart breaks. Once the teeth almost caught up with Joe while he was gulping milk toast, missing by snapping distance only.

One afternoon, Salt Lake opposed the Portland Beavers. The Utah team was three runs behind, ninth inning, two out and the bases filled. Joe'd been in an awful slump and was benched.

At this moment, fortunately for Salt Lake, something resembling a wide smile crawled up the players' bench and bit Jenkins where he carried his eating tobacco. Whooping wildly, Joe leaped seven feet in the air. With his right hand he snapped the prodigal lower plate into his mouth; with the left he reached down for his bat. Joe slammed a home run over the left field fence, winning the game for Salt Lake by a score of 6 to 5.

A RESOURCEFUL COCK

"THE picture in my living room," said Humming Bird Stevenson of Columbia, Tenn., "is not a reproduction of a freak of nature but a lifelike portrait of Blinky, my one-eyed rooster."

"That smear on the right side of his head is a glass eye. I know it's bloodshot. I painted it that way to make the other cocks overconfident. His neck is a trifle corkscrewish—that's because Blinky, in feinting to overcome the handicap of a single eye, almost wrung his own neck."

"The greatest pitting he won was when a couple of city fellows came to Columbia with their fighting birds and cleaned up."

"In the grand finale, Blinky was matched against the city champion, an Allen round-head, and I bet all I could beg, borrow or steal at odds of 5 to 1. The odds were easy to get, for word was passed to the city slickers that poor Blinky was a one-eyed cock."

"Blinky never showed better pitmanish. Wherever the round-head struck my pride sideslipped and put his glass eye in front of the gafts. After that the round-head's needles were too dull to mend a pair of open-work stockings and the match was in the bag."

Home of Seabirds

Venice has been called the "Queen of the Adriatic" and the "Serene Seaport," but its oldest name was the "Sea-Birds' Home." Long before the Huns swept down on Italy there was a small population, the aboriginal Venetians, occupying the estuary, of whom Cassiodorus, secretary of Theodor the Great, has left us a picture. The Huns drove refugees from Padua, Aquileia and other mainland cities to the lagoons to found a republic among the sea birds.
